

Mr. This young pilot, Maj. Richard Obens, after flying his small propeller-driven plane across the frontier of Poland and East Germany, declared that he was fleeing the oppressive and stifling restrictions placed on him in present-day Poland.

He is looking for a better-life for his children and, to find it, has risked his own life and the lives of his family in a heroic escape.

The newspaper article followed:

From Our Own James Sanger by Associated Press to Moscow in West Berlin

Berlin, July 10.—A Polish pilot from a two-seat military plane this afternoon and with his wife and two children flew to freedom in West Berlin.

Maj. Richard Obens circled Tempelhof Airfield in West Berlin twice after his 1-hour flight across Communist Poland and East Germany.

After the plane landed to a stop, the test pilot dashed into the arms of an astonished U.S. Air Force sergeant, sobbing happily. He asked for political asylum.

As the 34-year-old pilot told of his escape, his wife, Mary, 27, and his sons, Lestow, 8, and Kristoffer, 6, climbed from the rear cockpit. The boys had been tucked beneath the dashboard.

Obens said he flew dangerously low—never above 150 feet—the entire distance to escape detection by Polish and East German watchtowers, observation posts, and radar.

He told a news conference that he planned the flight for weeks. He kept his plans so secret, he said, that his wife and boys thought the family was heading for a short vacation in Spain when they took off from an air base at Radomsko, Poland.

He started the flight, he stated, and, due to his air force superior, he was flying the plane, which usually served as a courier craft, for the Army flight. They brought only the clothes they wore.

The plane is expected to be returned to the Poles later this week.

Obens was in full uniform as he stepped up to Air Force Capt. Lionel Patterson. His attractive wife wore gray slacks, a blue blouse, and a gray sweater. The boys wore shorts, sweaters, and tennis shoes.

Within 4 hours the major faced a news conference. By putting Obens immediately before the press, the West undoubtedly gained a propaganda victory.

Obens said he was fed up and that a majority of the officers he knew in Poland wanted to do just what he had done but they had few opportunities to do. He said most people in Poland want to come to the free West.

The major made it clear that his knowledge of terrain and Communist sciences were of great help. He was challenged only once, by an East German installation. He disregarded the call, kept his plane low, and flew on.

Mr. Speaker, in 1958 this House of Representatives adopted a resolution empowering the President to proclaim the third week in July each year as Captive Nations Week. Since that time, this Nation has observed the occasion annually and we shall continue to observe it annually, as long as there are people who are denied their fundamental rights to live in the dignity which their neighbors in free societies take as a matter of course.

During this week, we reaffirm our beliefs in the universal worth of each separate individual on this earth; we revere those gallant souls who have given their lives in the unending quest for freedom; and we give thanks for the miracle of democracy which shields each of us in this country from tyranny and oppression.

Khrushchev Tells Red China That His Stand in Cuba Was Right

War Proves That the Best Way To Carry the United States Is to Call Itself "Red China"

HON. CRAIG MOSNER

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 16, 1963

MR. HOOVER. Mr. Speaker, less than 1 year ago Mr. Khrushchev was caught red-handed speaking atomic rockets into Cuba. The fact he promised to take them away was and is still to a great triumph of the administration by the administration. Unfortunately, there really is no hard evidence the promise was ever fully carried out. There is, however, hard and convincing evidence that out of the affair the Soviet Union acquired a base and staging area for the taking over of countries of the Americas countries. This was not a real win for communism. Communism gained absolutely not of the affair. The United States lost heavily. However, this is not about that in administration goes nuclear. Nonetheless, Mr. Khrushchev is saying a lot about it in this argument with regard Communism attacking the United States. You can see that the Communists are not world communists. It is to be noted that these intra-Communist differences are not discussing about whether to bury the United States and the rest of the free world. They simply have no argument about the objective. Rather, the argument is about when and how to do it. On July 16 the Long Beach Independent-Press-Discriminatory newspaper rather cleverly discussed in the following editorial how Khrushchev uses the Cuba case to bolster his arguments:

A Question of Strategy

If the Red Chinese would just sit still and listen, they should learn something from the Russians.

The Russians are trying to tell them that violence against the United States is not necessary, since the aims of the Communists are being achieved by talk and trick.

To illustrate his case, Premier Khrushchev points to Cuba.

In his open letter to the Chinese Communist Party, Khrushchev notes that the Red Chinese considered his withdrawal of missiles from Cuba to be an act of capitulation. Actually, he says, it was an example of productive East-West negotiation—peaceful coexistence in action.

Russia moved her missiles into the island to protect the Communist revolution there, he explains. The subsequent agreement between Russia and the United States preserved the gains and the revolution.

What, you ask, agreement? Clearly as soon as the understanding that if the Russians withdrew their missiles, there would be no invasion by the United States or with U.S. sanction.

Thus, Khrushchev is telling his Red Chinese comrades, the net result of the Cuban adventure was an assurance that the Communist revolution on the island would be free to follow its course.

In truth, this has been exactly the result. The United States, not only has refrained from carrying out its action on its own, but also has prevented Russia's allies from going on without its own permission.

Khrushchev might well point to one other fact on behalf of the Communists. The American "no friends" policy has failed to result in the United States' withdrawal of the withdrawal of the Soviet missiles. However, there has never been a single Soviet inspection, therefore no withdrawal. Whether the Soviets removed personnel unknown, as they installed in the first place has never been determined.

And the Soviets are now trying to get it through the heads of the Red Chinese that one, there's no point in carrying violence when you can do by agreement through threat of violence; two, agreement is not necessarily bad if it is peaceful.

These Chinese, according regard as the main criterion of revolutionary spirit the recognition of all forms of spring in China. In everything, everything, says Khrushchev. Therefore the Chinese communists primary duty the possibility of using peaceful forms of struggle for the victory of the Chinese revolution, whereas Maoists, I think, believe that the Communists must make an effort of revolutionary and terroristic methods and methods.

In other words, Communists of the world unite under the slogan of peace. On Chinese side of course, while the struggle between Red China and the Soviet Union for the leadership of the Communist movement. It is not that the Chinese are fresh which the West can bring to support. Some groups prefer to make the use of territory and power between Russia and the United States developing friend or foe. Chinese split. If China is supposed to be an example of what that new era will bring, we cannot look forward to it with any great relief.

Soviet Bloc Sustains Setbacks in Algeria

HON. JOHN BRADEMAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 11, 1963

MR. BRADEMAS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to insert in the Congressional Record a recent Associated Press dispatch which describes how "the Soviet bloc is suffering setbacks in its efforts to establish a solid foothold in independent Algeria."

The article, published in the July 1, 1963, issue of the Washington Post follows:

Soviet Bloc Sustains Setbacks in Algeria

(By Andrew Borowick)

Algiers, July 10.—The Soviet bloc is suffering setbacks in its efforts to establish a solid foothold in independent Algeria.

The Algerian Government's ban on the Communist Party and its strong nonaligned course have provided a well-made policy in the Soviet bloc. The more aid given appears to be withering away.

However, Soviet bloc military assistance continues. Several hundred Algerian
